HOME MEMORIES MEAN MUCH

Duty of Parents to Give Children Something Which They May Recall With Pleasure.

Happy home memories to look back upon is a gift which every mother should plan as definitely to give to her child as she plans definitely to give him an education, sound health and good judgment.

First of all, then, it seems to me we owe our children memories of a beautiful home; a home of simple common sense; a well-ordered home. This would seem to me a child's very first right.

And next, it seems to me, he has the right to memories of beauty in the home. Children are far more susceptible to beauty than many of us realize, and certainly the effect of beauty on the child's life can hardly be overestimated.

Further, home to be a delightful memory must have the beauty of sociability. It must be a place where people come to share its benefits, and its ideals. That home can hardly be called a home which does not open its doors often.

Besides being a healthful place, a beautiful place, a sociable home, if it is to afford us enriching memories, must be an intimate and sympathetic place, possessing that finer intimate sociability which grows up between the true home and its inmates.

In all right living and thinking we are partakers of a kind of immortality, for death does not touch these things. —Laura Spencer Porter in Mother's Magazine.

PLAN VACATION FOR HEALTH

Period of Release From Toil Should Be Wisely Spent, or It Is Worse Than Useless.

Obviously you go on a vacation to find or to improve your health, remarks the Philadelphia Evening Ledger. But how many achieve it? To most of us a vacation is a respite from toil, with a license to overeat, oversleep and overdo everything that we take in normal doses during the period of hard labor. Who is there who hasn't returned from a vacation spoiled by indigestion, excessive play or a lazy indulgence in doing nothing, with the conviction that the pleasures and increased health he expected to find were a delusion?

The best vacation is not so much freedom from the necessity of working as it is a change, new scenes, new people, new ideas, all taken in moderation. As such they are a tonic. When you start forth, just to avoid the necessity of calling in a physician to diagnose your ailment, take the advice of Jonathan Swift and consult "the three best doctors in the world"—Doctor Diet, Doctor Quiet and Doctor Merryman. They will tell you to eat moderately of digestible foods, to let alcoholic liquors alone and then to remember, as Solomon said, that "a merry heart doeth good like a medicine."

While your sins must be atoned for in the next world, you have to pay for your follies also in this one.

Australian Afforestation.
 Afforestation was the subject of an address by Sir Ronald Munro Ferguson at Adelaide, South Australia, recently. In the course of his speech he said: "I have been much impressed with the variety of the hardwoods grown in Australia. I believe that in Australia you have a larger variety of the best hardwoods than exists in any other country in the world, but much of it has been wasted. In many instances these hardwoods have been used when cheaper and softer timber would answer the same purpose. Australia has an advantage in timber growing—a forest matures in thirty years, whereas it takes sixty years to reach the same stage of maturity in Europe. The Californian pine grows splendidly here, while it will not grow at all in the north of the British Isles. The total area reserved for forests in South Australia is 154,332 acres and, besides gradually adding to the reserves, the government have established a school of forestry at the Adelaide university for the scientific training of foresters."

Got Information Asked For.
 John Muir, California's naturalist and explorer, related the following story of Col. D. C. Collier:

While riding along San Diego, Cal., Mr. Collier came upon a dilapidated corral fence which hung a sign bearing the following announcement: "For Sale." A bright-looking small boy sat on the fence beside the sign and Mr. Collier asked him: "When does this ranch sell?"

The small boy glanced up quickly at Mr. Collier, smiled and said: "When some sucker comes along who can raise the wind." Mr. Collier doffed his sombrero, thanked the lad for his information and rode on his way feeling greatly enlightened.

Kills Crow: $1 in Its Beak.
 The crow has long been notorious for its kleptomaniac tendencies and known to steal anything, without regard to its value, but from the construction camp of the Chico Construction company, near Shippee, south of this city, comes a story of a crow that was discriminating enough to steal something of value.

John Schonlow, foreman for the company, went hunting. He fired into a flock of crows, killing one. When Schonlow picked up the bird he found tightly clasped in its beak a one dollar bill.—Chico Dispatch Sacramento Bee.

Clinics for Criminals.

Clinics for criminals are becoming recognized as a valuable adjunct to the city courtroom. Physical defects are frequently responsible for the perpetration of crime, and remedial measures may bring about a complete moral change. In Chicago a persistent offender was recently examined by the psychopathic institute connected with the Cook county juvenile court. He was found to be suffering from severe, but unsuspected, eye strain. When his eyes were treated and he was provided with congenial occupation, his criminal tendencies ceased. A habitual drunkard in Cleveland, who had been sent to prison 93 times in 30 years, was recently given a thorough physical examination, resulting in an operation for a dental disease of long standing. His tendency to drunkenness and disorderly conduct has not been manifested since.

Unlighted Stars.

It is reasonable to assume that the number of stars in space having a temperature so low that their radiations do not affect our eyes or photographic plates is extremely large. That these invisible stars are far more numerous than the luminous stars is suggested by Mr. F. A. Lindeman, who attempts a rough calculation of their relative number, based on the assumption that new stars (novae) are due to collisions. He concludes that there are about four thousand times as many dark stars as bright ones.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Cause and Effect.

It is said that more than half the mules in the world are here in the United States. As most of us know a few of them and are often obliged to associate or negotiate with them, perhaps this accounts for the high percentage of exasperation that is manifested in everyday life.—Providence Journal.
